Bjelovar is a city in central Croatia, in close proximity to border with Hungary. Throughout its short but rich history, it developed into the economic, administrative, educational, cultural and sports center of Bjelovar-Bilogora County. The key business sectors in Bjelovar are wood and timber processing that attracted the Italian investor Corno, as well as metal processing, agriculture, food-processing, trade and catering. The city has three business zones for small and medium entrepreneurship, equipped with infrastructure available for development. Bjelovar participates with 60% in the total income of Bjelovar-Bilogora County entrepreneurs. The area of Bjelovar is rich in important sources of oil, gas, quartz sand, thermal waters and other natural resources. Quality and extensiveness of agricultural land, expanded cattle-breeding, as well as rich and heterogeneous wood sources are the basis of development in this area. Bjelovar is the city of competitive production, new technologies and lifelong learning; city of civil society and the richness of diversity. Domestic landscapes and warm-hearted people give excellent conditions for catering and tourism.
